From Air Force Pilot to Fibrenew Franchise Owner

After twenty years as a pilot and crew chief with the US Air Force, David Underwood decided it was time to retire and for he and his wife to move back to North Carolina to be closer to family. They looked at a handful of different franchise opportunities but ultimately decided upon Fibrenew. With Fibrenew, they knew they would not only be able to generate a good income and build a family business, but also maintain the work/life balance for which they were looking. Other deciding factors for going with Fibrenew included the appeal of performing hands-on work and not being in an office cubicle everyday. Fibrenew's Veteran Incentive Program was also key in the final decision.

David's father, Craig went through the technician training course and in time, there are plans to add more technicians and vehicles to the business. Today, David's mobile Fibrenew business is kept busy restoring, repairing and cleaning leather, plastic and vinyl in and around Monroe, NC. They serve a clientele that is made up of residential customers, warranty companies, car rental agencies and numerous other local businesses.

David is very excited to be part of the Fibrenew family. He says the great support from other franchisees around the country and from the Fibrenew training and field support from head office staff, are all contributing to the growth of his business.
